1	DECLARATION OF SHERRY SKELLY GRIFFITH
2
3	I, Sherry Skelly Griffth, say:
4	1. I am the Director of the Curriculum Frameworks and
5	Instructional Resources Division ("Division") of the California
6	Department of Education in Sacramento, California. I am also the
7	Executive Secretary to the Curriculum Development and
8	Supplemental Materials Commission ("Commission") - a statutory
9	advisory body of the California Board of Education (the "Board").
10	I have been the Division Director and the Executive Secretary
11	since 1999. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth in
12	this declaration; and if called as a witness I would and could
13	testify competently thereto.
14
15	2. The Commission oversees the development of
16	curriculum frameworks for grades kindergarten through twelve ("K-
17	12"), and the evaluation of instructional materials for grades K-
18	8, which the Commission recommends to the Board for adoption.
19	Curriculum frameworks provide guidelines for educators and
20	publishers for the development of K-12 curriculum based on grade-
21	level content standards adopted by the Board in 1997 and 1998,
22	especially in the four core content areas (English-language arts,
23	mathematics, history-social science, and science), and other
24	content areas.
26	3. The Commission also advises the Board in its
27	process of adopting instructional materials for grades K-8. The Commission studies and evaluates instructional materials 1 2 submitted for adoption by national and state publishers. For use in grades K-8, state law requires school districts to select and 3 4 buy instructional materials that are on the Board-adopted list if 5 they buy the materials with funds from the Schiff-Bustamante Standards-Based Instructional Materials Program and the State 6 7 Instructional Materials Fund. High school districts have 8 statutory authority to adopt instructional materials, but only 9 from those publishers that comply with specific sections of the 10 Education Code. For the core subject areas with content 11 standards, the local governing board must certify by resolution 12 that the instructional materials are aligned to the Board's 13 content standards.

15 I am familiar with Williams v. State of California 4. and have read Plaintiffs' proposed class definitions in this 16 17 case. In particular, I have reviewed the definition relating to 18 instructional materials and textbooks in which Plaintiffs define 19 the class as any student that "does not have his or her own 20 reasonably current textbook or educational materials, in useable 21 condition, for each core subject." I understand that Plaintiffs 22 have interpreted "reasonably current" to mean that the textbooks 23 "fairly portray subject material that is existing at the present 24 time." In effect, plaintiffs' definition means that a textbook 25 cannot be more than a year old. Based on my knowledge of 26 existing cycles of the curriculum frameworks, no textbook can 27 meet this standard. In turn, pursuant to this definition every 28 -2-LA2:576838.1

student enrolled in a California public school does not have a "reasonably current" textbook for each core class. Therefore, every public school student in California falls within Plaintiffs' proposed class definition. Plaintiffs' proposed textbook standard would be unfeasible, if not impossible, to implement and, moreover, is inconsistent with existing State law.

5. The California Education Code requires that the 8 9 Board update or revise State curriculum frameworks every six years for core subjects, and every eight years for non-core 10 subjects. See Cal. Educ. Code § 60200. (As noted above, core 11 12 subjects include the areas of reading, writing, mathematics, history-social science, and science. See Cal. Educ. Code § 13 60603(e).) For grades K-8, the Board must adopt at least five 14 separate basic instructional materials for each grade level and 15 16 each core subject area. See Cal. Educ. Code § 60001. 17 Furthermore, the Board is required to set forth policies and procedures regarding the development of curriculum frameworks and 18 19 the adoption of instructional materials. See Cal. Educ. Code § 20 60005.

The seven-year adoption cycle allows the 22 6. 23 Commission sufficient time to thoroughly evaluate and revise the 24 curriculum framework for each subject area so that it may advise 25 the Board accordingly. The review process for each subject area 26 begins about two years before the given cycle for that subject 27 ends. In other words, the Commission begins developing the 28 -3-LA2:576838.1

1 framework for a subject area two years before that subject's next 2 adoption cycle. Thus, the Commission is continuously evaluating 3 the curriculum frameworks.

7. The review process requires that the Commission develop a K-12 curriculum framework for the subject under review, and the Board must approve the framework. The Commission . evaluates instructional materials, and provides the State Board with recommendations as to which materials to adopt.

10

8. This requires significant time and resources. 11 The Commission recommends to the Board numerous education experts 12 13 throughout the State to assist in the development of curriculum frameworks and the evaluation of K-8 instructional materials. 14 15 They make sure publishers have provided accurate and up-to-date research and information in their K-8 instructional materials. 16 17 Indeed, the Commission acts diligently so as to avoid the pitfall 18 of following educational trends that have not yet been proven 19 effective. Furthermore, the Commission collaborates with state-20 approved publishers to ensure that textbooks are well-made, 21 sturdy and durable such that they will facilitate the successful 22 delivery of these standards.

23

9. It would be impossible to undergo a reasonable evaluation of a subject area and develop a revised curriculum framework every year. Generally, publishers require over two years to produce textbooks and other instructional materials

4	10. In light of the State's seven-year adoption cycle,
5	no student attending a public school in California has a "current
